

Presenter Bio

Kathryn
Weber-Hottleman

Kathryn Weber-Hottleman serves as the University of Connecticut's IT Accessibility Coordinator, ensuring the University's Information Communication Technology (ICT) accessibility, with particular focus on the University's websites and online learning environments. She monitors University compliance with regulations and regulatory guidance specific to ICT and implements plans for enhancement in collaboration with other administrators, faculty and staff. She also provides guidance and assistance to campus departments in integrating accessible technology into the classroom and workplace environments and develops and implements staff and faculty training programs related to accessible technology and instruction for students and employees with disabilities.