

Dan Facchinetti

Dan Facchinetti is the LMS Faculty Development Specialist in the Center for Excellence in Teaching and Learning at UConn. He consults and provides guidance to faculty, staff, graduate students, and university administration on how learning management systems can be used as part of teaching and learning. He develops and delivers workshops, training programs, and support resources for all elements of teaching as they relate to LMS usage, and advises on new initiatives and software/platform adoptions. In addition, he provides day-to-day support to instructors through UConn's CETL-Educational Technologies Office.